A result-driven web developer with 1+ years of industry experience building websites and complex web applications. Coming from the private aviation field where I was coordinating a multitude of time-sensitive moving parts towards a single goal – providing the top-notch user experience, allowed me to express my love towards finding solutions. Though, only programming lets me combine what I am most passionate about: problem-solving and continuous learning. It ultimately motivated me to pursue a development career. I enjoy building fast, accessible, and meaningful products that do make a difference.
